DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-2 are presented for examination.
2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dynia. Dynia discloses a telescoping guide comprising substantially all of the structure of Applicant's claims 1-2, except for the provision of an additional sleeve. Note first and second sleeves(70)(78) with respective lip portions(72),(86), roller member (68), mounting plate(34), and retainer(62). While only two telescoping sleeves are disclosed in Dynia, it is old and well known in the telescopic pole art, to provide additional sleeves as necessary to extend the elongated support while still allowing the telescopic collapsing of the sleeves. To merely provide an additional sleeve with associated lip, between the first and second sleeves of Dynia to allow the roller to achieve an extended reach for higher ceilings or walls, would have been at most an obvious duplication of parts, and well within the skill of those of ordinary skill in the art. Applicant's preamble which recites "for a concrete saw" is not deemed patentably limiting, since only the telescoping guide per se, is claimed.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Haase et al, Tucker, Zuzelo, Lewis, and Wright are cited of interest to show other concrete saw cutters having hinged guide rollers.
